ESPERANTO POPULAR.

Society Formed in Boston to Promote New International Language.

The new auxiliary international language, Esperanto, seems to be growing rapidly in public favor. Already an active society has been organized in town, and under this club's auspices a course in the new mode of speech is already well under way. The Boston Esperanto Society meets every Tuesday evening in 26 Rogers to become more familiar with the new language.

It is thought by many that this language will eventually be adopted by the entire Christian world. For a long time it has been agreed that as international commerce continues to grow a common form of speech becomes more necessary. No one international language could be successfully used by all nations. First, the element of jealousy is too strong to allow it, and second, none of these languages is strictly scientific.

Many of the world's foremost linguists have made countless efforts to evolve a language that would suit the purpose. By far the most successful of these men has been Dr. Zamenhof, of Warsaw. His language is the natural outgrowth or development of all that is really international in the modern European languages. The pronunciation is common to practically all of these languages; its spelling is phonetic; and it is neutral, for in the evolution of the system no one language has been favored.

As indicative of the practicality of Dr. Zamenhof's system, it might be stated that it is now being adopted by many English and Continental commercial houses in their correspondence, besides being taught in commercial schools in almost every European country as well as in the training school for French army officers. The question of adopting it in the Red Cross Society is being seriously considered. Books for the blind have already been published in Esperanto and are becoming very popular.

The local societies are the Boston Esperanto Society, of which Mr. Edward K. Harvey of Perkins Institution, South Boston, is Secretary, and the Harvard Esperanto Society, whose Secretary is Mr. H. R. Shipherd, No. 1 Walter Hastings Hall.

NAVALS HOLD SMOKER.

The Naval Architects held their first smoker Friday evening at the Union with a large attendance. Mr. Everett gave a very interesting talk on "Steam Turbines," and told of the new class of engines used in the later Cunarders.

Preceding Mr. Everett's talk a business meeting was held. The Society shingle designed by one of the members was adopted. The design is that of a full rigged ship with the seal of the N. A. A. below. Two designs for pins of the society were also discussed. It was decided after much discussion to allow second year men to enter the society and also fourth year men of the Marine Engineering option. Refreshments were served at the close of the discussion and a pleasant evening enjoyed by all.

M. E. SOCIETY EXCURSION.

Inspection of B. F. Sturtevant Company Works Saturday.

The Mechanical Engineering Society held its first excursion of the year Saturday afternoon, visiting the works of the B. F. Sturtevant Company in Hyde Park. About thirty members attended.

The invitation to visit the works was received from Mr. Walter B. Snow, Consulting Engineer for the company and a graduate of the Institute.

The party left the Back Bay Station on the 1.44 P.M. train. On arriving at the works the men divided into two parties, each party being conducted through the plant by an employee of the company.

The business of the B. F. Sturtevant Company is primarily the manufacture of fans and blowers, but the manufacture of accessory parts, as engines, motors, economizers, and galvanized iron flue piping also, is now carried on.

The plant is very extensive, the company employing over 1300 men. The tract of land owned by the company is about fifteen acres and has a railroad frontage of 1300 feet. The floor space in all the buildings exceeds nine acres and enlargements are contemplated which will greatly increase the capacity of the plant. The plant comprises eight buildings, in addition to the power house, and includes among others a plant in which all the printed and advertising matter of the company is produced.

The excursion was very interesting and even the slight rain did not interfere with the general good time.

INSTRUCTORS MEET AT UNION.

The 14th Annual Meeting of the Instructors Club was held at the Union at 6 o'clock last Thursday. Mr. Sawyer presided and Mr. Rolfe, of the Chemical Department, was the guest of the club.

After the coffee was served President Sawyer formally welcomed the new members to fellowship in the club. He also announced the resignation of the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. S. H. Thorndike, who has left the Institute in order to accept a position in the office of the City Engineer of Boston. Dr. R. P. Bigelow was appointed Secretary-Treasurer pro tem.

Mr. Rolfe gave a very interesting talk on Porto Rico, especially dwelling upon the present methods of sugar manufacture. The talk was illustrated by photographs and lantern slides—unfortunately without a lantern—and by specimens of the productions of the island.

Afterwards Mr. Sawyer gave an entertaining account of his search for an otherwise abandoned farm in Maine, including in his story a remarkable trout fishing experience and some successful expeditions in quest of ancient firearms and of relics of the Aborigines.

A Kodak exhibition, accompanied by lectures and demonstrations on the chemical procedure of photography, will be held in Copley Hall for a period of two weeks beginning October 15.

The course is near Commonwealth Avenue and may be reached from the Institute in about a half an hour by taking cars via Cottage Farm and getting off at Eleanor street.

Further particulars may be obtained by telephoning the steward, Brighton, 252-2.

The course is well kept and easily accessible from the Institute and therefore may be expected to be used a good deal by the Institute people who enjoy golf.

A. I. E. E. MEETING.

A meeting of the Boston branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers was held in 6 Lowell last Wednesday evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Chairman, H. E. Clifford; Vice-Chairman, C. B. Burleigh; Secretary, C. H. Porter; Executive Committee, A. E. Kennelly, C. L. Edgar, J. I. Ayer, R. Fleming, G. S. Gibbs.

Mr. Fleming presented an abstract of a paper by Percy H. Thomas on "Some Fundamental Characteristics of Mercury Vapor Apparatus," and Mr. Neall abstracted a paper by E. E. F. Creighton on "Methods of Testing Protective Apparatus." After an interesting discussion of these papers the meeting was adjourned.

Monday, October 22, 1906.

From the consensus of opinion, it is more than evident that the Corporation made a happy choice in settling on Dean West of Princeton as the man most fitted to be the successor of President Pritchett. Recognized as an exceptional organizer, as a scholar, as an author, as an authority on educational matters, as an executive officer of exceptional ability, and more than all, as a man of magnetic personality and force of character, he will come to us at a crucial time. Several weighty questions, all bearing on the future of the Institute, are to be decided.

Being a man of originality and force, we cannot doubt that his presence will be marked by the infusion of new life into the effort so warmly advocated by President Pritchett to broaden and advance the scope of Technology's work. The inspiration that comes from working under one so well known in the college and outside world as Dr. West is something, the value of which is inestimable.

With that instructive accuracy with which a body of young men will recognize a strong man for what he is, the students of Princeton have recognized in Dr. West a character for whom their love and respect could hardly be stated in words too strong. A natural leader, he has penetrated to the very heart of the University life. So strongly have his wide sympathies and interests made themselves evident that they have attracted the admiration and respect even of those students who have never had the privilege of knowing him personally.

As striking evidences of his versatility and wide attainments, he is the only member of the Science Club who is not a professor of science rather than a literary man.

The universal respect and high esteem in which college men hold Dr. West is best evidenced by the following editorial from the Daily Princetonian:

The announcement that Dr. Andrew F. West, Ph.D., LL.D. Hon. D.Litt., Oxon., has been invited to accept the presidency of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology comes as a great cause of anxiety to all Princeton men. The mere thought of what the loss of such a man would mean to the University is appalling. There is probably no member of the Faculty whose powers have been so actively engaged in such a wide range of activities as Dean West. As a member of the Classical Department he has been connected with the University for nearly twenty-five years, and today ranks among the foremost Latin scholars of America. He is the only member of the Faculty, holding an honorary degree from Oxford University, England, where he has a large acquaintance in university and literary circles. In this country, also, he enjoys a remarkable reputation as an authority on educational matters, and is very well known for his papers and discussions on University questions.

The Graduate School at Merwick, of which he is the Dean, and which was established last year, is the result of ten years of untiring effort on his part to establish a graduate residence college in this country after the model of Oxford and Cambridge. In addition to his activity in this direction, he has gained great fame for Princeton by his addresses on the Preceptorial System in various parts of the United States, and it is largely through his explanations that the importance of this system has become generally recognized. Dr. West's energies have not been confined to Princeton alone, however, for as chairman of the Executive Committee of the American School at Rome he has probably been more influential than any other one man to establish the school upon so firm a basis.

And yet, aside from all he has done for Princeton, aside from his great reputation as a scholar, the loss of the man himself to the University and to the community would strike deep into the hearts of the undergraduates. His magnetic personality and force of character would be sadly missed, and the University would suffer an irreparable loss.

Lost. — A brown, paper-covered note book, with name, J. C. Childs, on outside. Finder please leave at Cage and oblige.

COMMUNICATION.

The Editors do not hold themselves responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.

1910 ATTENTION:

Those who are interested want the '10 team to win the tug-of-war event on Field Day. How do you expect this is going to be done if you don't get out and help? The Juniors haven't told you for historic worth that but one Freshman class has lost this event, but you seem to think that their motive.

You want to be an unusual class. You will be unusual by being the second Freshman class to lose the Tug-O-War if you do not support the team. If you have no respect for your own class, you should at least show gratitude for the Junior's interest by reporting at the Gym. every day at 4.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING.

Rev. A. P. Fitch of the Mount Vernon Congregational Church addressed the Technology Christian Association at the noon meeting Thursday, on Jesus as an Example in Our Daily Lives. He pointed out a number of incidents in the life of Christ and applied them directly to Tech men. Christ was just as busy as any man of today and yet he had time to do good and give to all of his best. The habit of following this example should be cultivated by Tech men while they are yet young and able to form such habits more easily than later. The next three meetings of the Y. M. C. A. will be addressed by Rev. Thomas Van Ness.

TREMONT THEATRE.

At the Tremont Theatre tonight "The Student King" will enter upon the fourth and last week of its engagement. It is some time since Henry W. Savage has offered to the theatre-goers of Boston an operatic morsel which has pleased them so thoroughly as this one has evidently done. Every night during the past three weeks the Tremont has been crowded to its capacity, and the applause and laughter of the audience has been good to hear. The tale of the student of Prague who, while playing at king for a carnival day, meets and falls in love with a real princess who is masquerading as a milk-maid, is one which appeals to every lover of light romantic opera. To the composer, Reginald DeKoven, it has acted as a tonic, and inspired one of the most melodious scores that talented musician has ever penned. Every number in the opera is a little masterpiece, and the whole score is so evenly balanced that it is a never-failing succession of delights. Manager Savage has given the opera a truly regal production, both in point of scenery and costumes and in the personnel of the company. The opera is in three acts, and each setting is a marvel of beauty. The costumes, too, are nothing if not artistically handsome. A feature of the production is the chorus, both male and female. The male chorus is remarkably large in number, more than two dozen voices. Its singing power has never been equalled on the light operatic stage. The female chorus is made up of a large number of very pretty girls, who sing as effectively as they are good to look upon. The prima donna, Mme. Lina Abarbanell, comes from the grand opera stage and possesses a voice of superb quality.

Carnegie Lake, a gift to Princeton by Andrew Carnegie, is rapidly nearing completion. Work has been pushed forward with great rapidity during the summer and the engineers expect to begin filling it in the first week in November. The average depth of the lake will be four feet. Its total length is three and one-half miles and its average width at the upper end is six hundred feet, and at the lower end eleven hundred feet. Princeton has long felt the need of such a lake, there being no water of much size anywhere near, and will this year probably have a crew.
